Supported Businesses in Scotland
Creating value in a socially responsible way
Foreword

Public sector procurement has evolved rapidly over recent years with continued effort to bring public sector bodies and suppliers together. At the heart of this process has been a focus on public sector procurement reform, making the way the public sector spends its money more transparent, effective and sustainable.

The social and community benefit elements of sustainable procurement are increasingly prominent considerations in public procurement decisions and this new directory will assist buyers in satisfying the needs of social policies and providing employment opportunities for people with disabilities.

Our supported factories and businesses play a vital role in providing quality, competitively-priced goods and services to the public sector. The Scottish Government is working hard to ensure that public sector buyers are informed and supported when procuring from the third sector.

Scottish public bodies are required by the Scottish Sustainable Procurement Action Plan to make the maximum possible use of reserved contracts for supported factories and businesses. At the very least, every public body should aim to have at least one such contract.

To help in achieving this aim the Scottish Government established a reserved framework agreement for supported factories and businesses in 2012. The framework agreement makes it easier for Scottish public bodies to buy a range of products from supported businesses – helping to sustain vital employment for people with disabilities.

The framework agreement, and this updated directory, are clear examples of how the Scottish Government is determined to boost the economic sustainability of businesses which build a wealthier and fairer Scotland.

I would encourage Scottish public sector buyers to refer to this directory when considering reserved contracts – the breadth and quality of services and goods on offer is something we should be proud to support.

Fergus Ewing
Minister for Energy, Enterprise & Tourism
Private sector businesses choose to buy from supported factories and businesses because they know the products and services on offer are market-leading, competitive and, above all, offer exceptional customer service.

The public sector now has more choice and support to reserve contracts which will directly present contract opportunities for supported factories and businesses, ensuring a sustainable long-term future for some of Scotland’s most important businesses.

I am pleased to be involved with representatives and stakeholders in developing initiatives and promoting supported factories and business, and can fully endorse this directory as a valuable document, signposting public sector buyers to an innovative and exceptional range of business.

Grahame Smith
General Secretary of the STUC
About this directory

- This directory gives buyers across the Scottish public sector a comprehensive view of the capability of Scotland’s supported factories and businesses. It outlines the high-quality products and services they provide as well as their unique contribution to the wider community.

- A supported factory or business is an establishment where the majority of workers are people with a disability. Supported factories and businesses deliver employment, development and training opportunities for people with disabilities and to help them, whenever possible, into mainstream employment.

- The Scottish Government’s policy is that every public body should reserve at least one contract for a supported business and this directory gives buyers a reference document to research potential suppliers, their products and services and contact details.

- When you contract with supported businesses you are using businesses committed to customer satisfaction and quality. You also help to sustain some of Scotland’s most vital businesses which improve people’s lives by providing meaningful employment and training opportunities for those who are unable to take up work in the open labour market.
Supported businesses in Scotland

- Scotland has a well-established history of creating supported businesses - some have been in existence for over 150 years. There are currently 20 supported businesses in operation, providing sustainable employment for more than 500 employees and training opportunities for a further 400 per annum.

- The scope of products and services supported businesses offer is varied - ranging from furniture, high-performance textiles, laundry services, packing and fulfilment, office support services and IT recycling.

- The fact that many private sector customers choose to buy goods and services from these supported businesses confirms their competitiveness, quality and, above all, a culture of customer service.

Article 19

Article 19 of the EU public procurement directive allows public bodies to make the decision to reserve public contracts for supported businesses. This is enacted in Scotland by Regulation 7 of the Public Contracts (Scotland) Regulation 2012 and as a public body, you can make use of these regulations to restrict the tendering process for goods or services to supported businesses only.

“Scotland has a well-established history of creating supported businesses - some have been in existence for over 150 years.”
In October 2012 the Deputy First Minister and Cabinet Secretary for Infrastructure, Investment and Cities, Nicola Sturgeon, welcomed a new national Framework Agreement that makes it easier for Scottish public bodies to buy from supported businesses.

Supported businesses in the framework can supply a range of products including furniture, document management, textiles and signage, helping to grow their business and create jobs.

Ms Sturgeon said: “This is a fine example of how the way the public sector buys goods and services can help boost our economy and get people into work. It is also a tribute to the supported businesses themselves, who have successfully bid to be part of this arrangement.”

Edinburgh-based Lady Haig’s Poppy Factory is a unique supported business employing disabled ex-servicemen and women exclusively. The majority of Lady Haig’s production is centred on the annual Scottish Poppy Appeal and each year it makes around 5,000,000 poppies, thousands of boxes and a large number of other items associated with remembrance.

Lady Haig’s has a long-established relationship with the public sector, supplying remembrance wreaths to local authorities, schools, colleges and other organisations across Scotland. From its production site, Lady Haig can accommodate large or small orders to suit with excellent customer service as key.

Customer testimonial

“I would like to thank all those involved in a remarkable delivery of poppy wreaths. Order placed today and the poppies have been delivered by 3 pm this afternoon. Wonderful, wonderful service.”

The Scottish Soapworks is an Edinburgh-based soap-making business, specialising in traditional soap bars and glycerine soaps, as well as a range of luxurious and indulgent bubble baths, hand and body washes, lotions, creams, lip balms and scrubs.

The Scottish Soapworks handmade products take more time and love to manufacture than mass-produced soap products and a great deal of care is taken to get recipes just right – blending oils and fragrances, shea butter and cocoa butter to produce irresistible treats and gifts. The business’ product range appears in hundreds of retail outlets across Scotland and it also specialises in the production of wedding favours, souvenirs and corporate gifts.

The Scottish Soapworks is passionate about its products and prides itself on sourcing the very best natural and sustainable ingredients which are carefully blended into unique bath and body treats.

Against animal testing, The Scottish Soapworks cares about the environment, insisting that packaging is kept to a minimum and that every package produced can be reused or recycled. The business reflects its belief in social inclusion and opportunities for all. The Scottish Soapworks is part of Forth Sector.

Customer testimonial

“We have been delighted with the service provided by The Scottish Soapworks, a local social enterprise and supported business, and our visitors and guests are always thrilled to receive a high-quality souvenir, handmade in Edinburgh.”

Jim Galloway. Head of Enterprise and Innovation, Economic Development, City of Edinburgh Council

Aberdeen Textiles and Workwear Services (ATWS) is a specialist in providing industrial workwear and personal protection equipment – such as hard hats, high-visibility jackets, eye and ear protection – with the experience and skills to meet the demanding specifications and standards required by its customers.

As well as its full range of standard textiles and workwear products, ATWS offers a full manufacture and alteration service which delivers high-visibility flashing, knee pads, logos and badging to industrial workwear - offering a bespoke service to a range of customers within the oil and gas, and marine industries.

ATWS is also able to offer an embroidery service to brand a wide range of products such as shirts, polo shirts, sweatshirts, t-shirts, caps, bags and jackets. The business currently works with a range of businesses, clubs, schools and nurseries to personalise items with logos and can advise customers on best use of materials and designs.

Established in 2012, ATWS is proud of its reputation for delivering quality and flexibility to its customers. The business has the capacity and capability to service the public sector and believes its value-for-money and quality service can provide a variety of solutions for organisations across Scotland.

ATWS provides meaningful and rewarding employment for disabled people in the Aberdeen area.

Customer testimonial

“We are very happy with the quality of product provided and the responsiveness to our delivery requirements. The overall level of service is excellent. I am pleased to have this opportunity to recommend ATWS as a supplier of Work-wear and PPE.”

The BASE members in Scotland have been supporting the Scottish Government around the launch of the Scottish Government’s Supported Business Framework and the use of Article 19 of EU Legislation.

BASE members welcome the publication of the Supported Businesses in Scotland directory which is designed to promote Scottish supported business and the benefits they offer. Scottish supported businesses have demonstrated over a sustained period that the goods and services they offer provide excellent value for money to the public sector.

BASE members’ approach and initiative is designed to provide public and private sector buyers with a clear route to incorporate Scottish supported businesses into their supply chains. In turn, they benefit by securing best value for money by taking the full economic, environmental and social impact of their spending into account.
