Important news for autistic job seekers

In association with the Bloomfield Trust, the Employment and Enterprise team at NAS has launched an exciting new employment programme, Autism at Work. The programme supports employers to promote job opportunities to autistic job seekers. We then support applicants through the recruitment process and successful candidates to prepare for and succeed in their role.

The roles that are created through Autism at Work will be posted on our Jobs Board on the Employment pages of the NAS website.

The Employment pages also give information on how to access our free online Finding Employment training module, designed to give job seekers all the skills needed to find sustainable employment.

This fantastic resource, not only guides you through all the stages of finding paid employment, but features content that is tailored to address the additional complexities often experienced as an autistic job seeker.

Further details on how the Autism at Work programme engages with employers can be found here.

Additional queries, including how our branches can access our full range of tools and resources for providing advice and support to autistic job seekers in local communities, please email enterprise.team@nas.org.uk
